Overview

Tunis Village is so well known for its pottery that it holds an annual festival where every nook and cranny of the village is filled with paints, clay, and perfect pieces to take back home. If you're not there in November when the event usually takes place, fret not – there are plenty of year-round places to both make and buy pottery. For those looking to explore Egypt trips, one of the most notable attractions of Fayoum is the Fayoum Pottery School, perhaps the best-known. Established in the 1980s by Swiss expat Evelyne Porret, this quaint little workshop has become part of the Tunis community.
